

Responsive aftersales service

Fibron is widely recognised for offering exceptional customer service, and this service extends even after our products have left the factory and been safely delivered.

Our products are often deployed in very challenging environments and accidents do happen. Damage to an umbilical or cable can lead to expensive downtime, which is why Fibron offers a fast and responsive aftersales service. From advice and help with product installation to repairs, re-termination and onsite testing, the Fibron team offers all the necessary support to get a project up and running again as quickly as possible.

Examples include:

- Installation support
- Repairs
- Re-terminations
- On-site testing
- Fault finding
